

I see no reason why satellite radio should not be allowed to offer local services . I understand that the NAB will want to fight anything that allows innovative competitive forces to enter into previously sacrosanct space. But, satellite radio has also a huge capital investment involved and this would ultimately be a benefit for both the industry and the consumer. A satellite radio owner (who often travels long distances where virtually nothing can be received - MT / WY) who hopes that competition remains the model of American ingenuity. Thanks for reading and recording my comment. jbt
